List of Stations

with opening and closing dates from 1828 to 2003

Acknowledgement

This list is taken from a publication entitled “North British Railway Register of Stations Routes and Lines” which was written by Study Group member David Lindsay, who spent some considerable time researching the subject. The NBR Study Group gratefully acknowledges his help and assistance in presenting this extracted list of North British Railway stations, which includes every passenger station of the NBR, its constituents, joint companies and successors.

Notes on layout

- Items in ' Italics ' = Indicate that the station concerned was used privately or was open for use by restricted traffic, such as miners, railway workers and their families, or for irregular excursion traffic.
- ( Edinburgh ) = Indicates town, city or county where station is located.
- [ for Forth Bridge ] = Indicates name added, and, or dropped during life of station, as detailed in remarks column.
- Company Initials. = i.e. NB. CSB. EP&D used to show the owning company at opening, NOT the building, operating or leasing company.
For example " Arbroath DA " at opening the Dundee & Arbroath Railway was the owning company. The Dundee & Arbroath Joint was not formed until 01.02.1880 under the terms of its incorporating Act of 27.07.1879
- Opening dates = Date station opened to public. Ceremonial dates, or where station was opened under a different name on the given date, are shown in the remarks column .
- Closing dates = Date service ceased, normally the Monday following last train or date station name changed. [ i.e. station renamed as shown in remarks column ]

Station Names

These have presented a few headaches in the preparation of this list.

To quote a few examples.

“Cowlairs” was also called “Cowlairs Junction” for a spell, photographic evidence is available but unfortunately no date of renaming.

To add to confusion the Timetables, of the period, often referred to nearby places whilst the station name boards did not.

For example in the NBR timetable of 1900 the timetable index shows “Reston for Coldingham and St. Abbs” Certainly in living memory the station name-board did read “Reston for St. Abbs”.
